

Tristan Kimball | Text Transcript | CSAHS Award Recognition 2020

My name is Tristan Kimball and I'm a fourth year Psychology student here at the University of Guelph. I'm also the recipient of the Janet Wardlaw Memorial Scholarship.

I would like to start by thanking my university, the College of Social and Applied Human Sciences, and the donors of the Janet Wardlaw Memorial Scholarship for this prestigious award.

This is one of those moments where you come to see the fruits of your labor realized and it is truly a gratifying and validating experience. The impact of receiving this award is far greater than I could have imagined.

This award has validated and reaffirmed the value of my hard work throughout my undergraduate degree. Volunteering and being a student leader are things I value so highly in my life and in and of themselves they are rewarding, but receiving recognition for something that I love to do is the greatest prize that anyone can receive.

I hope to continue to make the donors of this award, my college, and my university proud in the future. Thank you very much.
